Saturday, September 30, to Be Deadline for Paying Poll Tax

The following statement on payment of poll taxes released jointly by Attorney General Jack Holt and Auditor J. Oscar Humphrey is, so far as the law is concerned, an official opinion by the attorney general's office.

The new law fixes the deadline for payment of poll taxes October 1, but since this falls on Sunday this year the actual deadline will be Saturday night, September 30. The official statement follows.

Act 82 of the Acts of Arkansas, 1939, changes the old law and provides that a person may now pay his poll tax up to midnight of the first day of October of this year (1939).

Please bear in mind that it is absolutely necessary for everyone who wishes to vote in the primary next year (1940) to have a poll tax issued prior to midnight of the first day of October, 1939.

All persons who failed to assess last year and who wish to pay their poll tax between now and midnight October 1, may assess delinquent with the assessor and pay their poll tax without a penalty, under the provisions of Section 4 of the Acts of Arkansas, 1939, which reads as follows:

"That the collectors of the various counties of the state are hereby authorized and directed not to collect the penalties provided by law for delinquent poll tax assessments for the year 1938, upon which assessment taxes are to be paid in 1939."

Do not forget you must have a poll tax issued and dated prior to midnight October 1, 1939, in order to vote in the primary of 1940.

On account of the importance of this change in the law, which might bar thousands of good citizens from voting in the primary next year because they have not been made aware of the change, will you, who read this article, please inform as many people as possible in your county of the change in the law.

Hitt's Offer Shoe Designing Test

Every Woman Given Chance to Create a New Shoe Style

That every woman is a potential shoe designer is the belief of Hitt's Shoe store which announces a novel shoe-designing competition.

The idea, sponsored by the Air Step division of the Brown Shoe Company of St. Louis, gives every woman an opportunity to create a new shoe style, based on the theory that an ideal "dream shoe" lurks in the back of every feminine mind.

In its announcement of the competition, the Brown Shoe Company states that since American women are responsible for the variety and elegance of women's fashions, they should have something to say in the expression and formulation of styles.

Entries in the contest will be provided with free Sketch Book Entry Blanks, containing simple outlines of the foot. These entry blanks are now obtainable in the shoe department at Hitt's. Entrants may design any type of shoe they wish, filling in the outline and detail to suit themselves. Suggestions are given to make the contest easy, and women are urged to make the opportunity to decide for themselves just what material they would choose for their shoes.

how they should be cut, whether the heels should be high or low, and if the toes are to be round, square or pointed.

A $500 wardrobe ensemble, of the winner's own selection, will be the first prize, with an alternate grand to Bermuda for a one-week stay. 100 other prizes, including $100 wardrobe ensembles are also offered in this national competition.

Announcement of the Air Step Shoe Design Competition was made in Life magazine, September 11th issue.

Many Entertainment and Educational Events Are Planned

Several events of interest to Hempstead county residents have been planned for the county fair beginning next Tuesday.

Some of the events include cycle circus on Saturday a horse show on Thursday and a pet show on Wednesday.

John Apperson, 79-year-old Hope man, was in a critical condition Tuesday afternoon at Josephine hospital as the result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident at 6:30 p. m. Monday at Main and Second streets.

Physicians said there was little hope for his recovery.

They described his injuries as a possible fractured skull, left shoulder and chest injuries. The right hip and right elbow are injured and he has severe bruises about the body.

A report from the hospital at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday said Mr. Apperson had been unconscious nearly 12 hours.

Mrs. Coop was driving north on Main street and Mr. Apperson was crossing the street from McLaes Hardware store to the Arkansas Bank & Trust co. building.

Mrs. Coop told The Star she was blinded by lights of an automobile that was traveling south on Main street and did not see Mr. Apperson as he attempted to cross the street.

Flynn Warns U. S. Against War Babies: Inflation, Devaluation

Nations Plunge in War Debts, Then Cheapen Currency

It's Old, Old Story of "Borrow and Then Repudiate"

A WAR-RICH U. S. A.

Before 1914 War We Owed Europe—But Now Europe Owes Us

The last of three exclusive articles—by a distinguished journalist—economist—on "The War and Your Pocketbook."

By JOHN T. FLYNN (Written for NEA Service)

NEW YORK — The effect of the war upon the world's currencies is certain in time to alter the size and shape of the average American's pocketbook.

There is nothing older than the practice of governments going to war, borrowing money to fight the war, getting themselves loaded with debt and then repudiating the debt by the simple process of devaluation.

The American accustomed as he is to the debts of our depression era, can have no conception of the staggering burden under which every European government labors even before the war gets well under way.

Yet as the war starts new plans for new and even more fantastic debts are arranged.

Repercussions Here Are Danger

The moment the war ends, however, every country will find these debts completely beyond its power to manage.

One of two things will happen. Either a runaway inflation will set in which will be followed by a swift devaluation, or if the governments manage to check the inflation, the devaluation will be forced, if possible even more swiftly.

These devaluations cannot very well take place without some measure of devaluation here. Certainly there will be fears of devaluation, rumors about it, discussions of it. And this will have a bad effect on our economic condition.

Debtor Gets Break—Not So, Creditor

The effect of this will be quite mixed on the population. It will also injure the working man at first, for his wages will be slower in adjusting themselves to the new levels than prices.

The very fear of devaluation will tend to discourage investment by lenders, although it ought to encourage investment such things as houses and apartments and buildings by those who have the cash to make construction or can borrow it.

But the government, foreseeing this sort of thing, must take whatever measures are possible to provide the necessary cushion and to protect the economic system abroad.

No Time For Crackpots

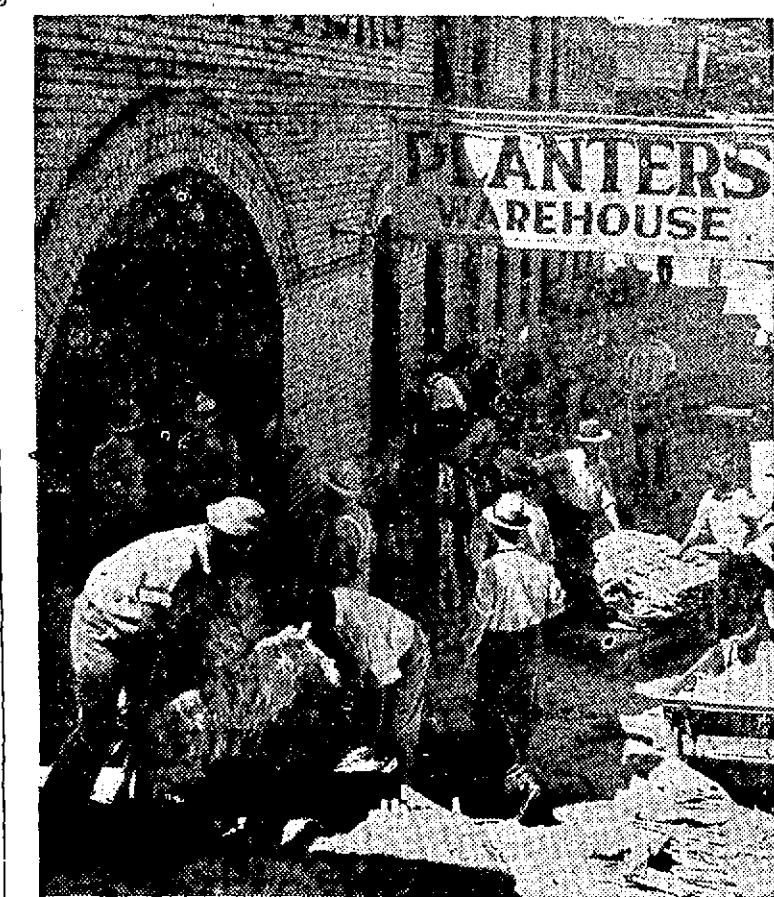

It is foolish to suppose we can isolate ourselves from these foreign disturbances. But we certainly can mitigate the shock to an appreciable extent.

One thing necessary to do this is to render ourselves as independent as possible of the emergency business which foreign nations have to offer.

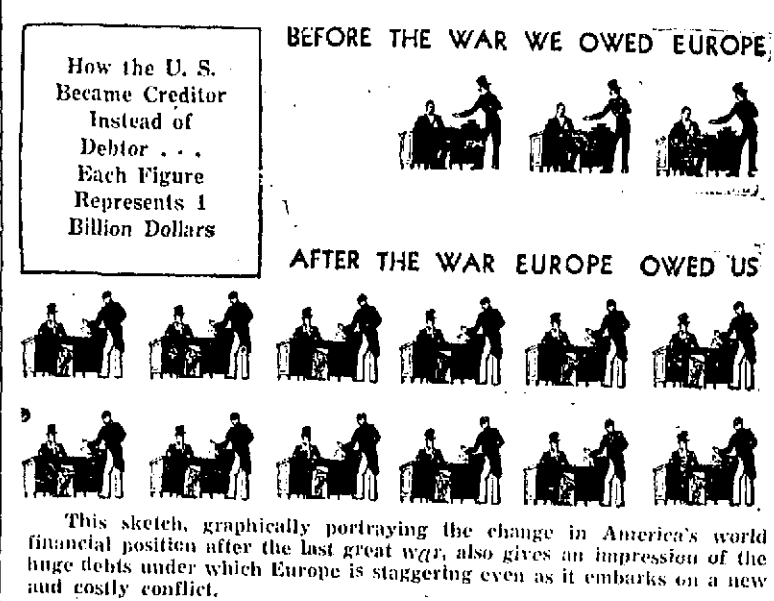

Every effort should be made to hold fast to the foreign trade we have of a normal and peacetime character. But war trade which is transient, which is unhealthy, which swells up like a tumor and then is punctured suddenly like a balloon, is perhaps the best way of getting us implicated in the economic repercussions of the war.

Above all men should keep a cautious eye peeled for the gentlemen who will appear with all sorts of crazy plans to deal with this situation. It involves a highly expert phase of national economics and is not the field for the crackpot money reformer and his kind.

In England, during 1938, 13,000,000 milk bottles went astray; the bottles approximately six cents each.

The war touches an American industry — Withdrawal of British buyers because of the war in Europe, forced temporary closure of tobacco markets. Here farmers are shown rushing their tobacco into warehouses at Louisville before the deadline shutting the doors of all North Carolina markets.

Band Instruments Rented to Students

Chicago Representative Here to Explain Plan to Parents

An interesting display of new band instruments were exhibited at the Oglesby school Monday night and many parents were there to find out more about the unique plan for obtaining an instrument. The following children were tested and rented an instrument.

Mary Sue Phillips, Rose Myra Russell, George Ware, Jr., Eva Jean Milam, Elizabeth Ellis, and Neoma Dudeney, clarinet; Ophelia Hamilton, Dorothy Nesbitt, saxophone; Aubrey Collier, Dinzal Graves, cornet, Jack Ray, snare drum.

Band Director Thomas Cannon said: "Boys and girls who join the band quickly develop an attitude of concentration, teamwork and discipline. It gives them confidence of social activity and enjoyment lost to those who have not had this advantage."

"It is not too late yet to enter your child in this group, as we have an instrument."

Miss Fletcher has resided in Arkansas the past five years, following graduation at Auburn University.

She took charge of the home demonstration agent's office at Hope city hall Tuesday morning and announced that she would be glad for community club women needing assistance to call on her immediately.

Miss Fletcher said she planned to take an active part in the coming Hempstead county fair and urged each community to arrange for an educational exhibit for the fair.

Donizetti, Gade, Handel, Mahler, Rossini, Schubert, and Verdi all played and composed on the guitar.

Has No War Aims Against Allies, He Tells the World

Asserts Russia, Germany Have Sole Rights in Eastern Europe

DEFIANT OF ALLIES

German Leaders Declare Reich Can Hold Out for Seven Years

DANZIG—(AP)—Adolf Hitler assured France and England Tuesday that he had "no war aims" against them, but declared Poland as created by the Versailles treaty "never again will rise."

He warned the Western powers that Germany never would "capitulate," and was prepared for as much as a seven years war if necessary.

In an hour and 14-minute speech, one of his best oratorical efforts, the fuhrer dwelt at length on what he called his efforts "to bring about friendly relations" with Britain and France.

He spoke at the climax of his first visit to Danzig since he gathered the former Free City into the Reich. He was given a frenzied welcome by the populace.

He declared Germany and Russia, Europe's "two greatest nations instead of being trouble-makers, are going to organize peace in the East."

"In the West and South," he asserted, "Germany has made important concessions, hoping to bring about definite peace in Europe."

"We believe we would have been successful had downrout war agitators not always upset our efforts."

He said Soviet Russia concurred in his promise that the Poland of post-Versailles days would not rise again. He said Germany and Russia are the only ones entitled to "re-establish law and order in Eastern Europe."

Referring to British assertions that the war might last three years, Hitler said it would "be dependant upon us if the war lasts that long."

"If it should last three years the word 'capitulation' should not stand at its end, nor stand at the end of the fourth, fifth, sixth or seventh year, for they (the Allies) are not facing the Germany of Bethmann-Hollweg (1914 German chancellor but the Germany of Frederickian time (meaning Frederick the Great)."

Allies Are Braced

PARIS, France —(AP)—France and Britain strengthened their war line on the Western front Tuesday in anticipation of a major battle as soon as German reinforcements are rushed back from Poland.

Along the northern flank was confined to artillery fire and some air fighting.

New Polish State

CERNAUTI, Rumania —(AP)— Reports from Poland Tuesday said a new pro-German, pro-Russia regime was about to be established there, replacing the government whose leaders are now refugees in Rumania.

Informed persons said the new Polish government would immediately sign a peace pact with Germany and Soviet Russia, and would accept a re-drawing of Poland's borders.

It was said the new state would be a "buffer" between the two great powers.

Russians Advancing

MOSCOW, Russia —(AP)—The general staff of the Soviet army reported Tuesday that the Russian forces continued to "reject the troops of the Polish army" and that the westward-bound Russians were approaching the Polish cities of Lwow and Vilna.

The official news agency said the population was greeting the troops with red banners and flowers.

The statement said the Soviet government wishes to live in peace with all countries. It was added that the Soviet government has publicly announced that the Soviet Union will pursue a policy of neutrality with regard to all countries with which it

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.
Give love, and love to your life will flow,
And strength in your inmost needs;
Have faith and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your work and deeds.
Give truth, and your gifts will be paid in kind,
And song a song will meet;
And the smile which is sweet will surely find
A smile that is just as sweet.
Give pity and sorrow to those who mourn;
You will gather in flowers again
The scattered seeds from your thought outborne,
Though the sowing seemed in vain.
For life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

To Stress Offense In Drill Sessions

Team Needs Improvement In Blocking, Timing, Passing, Says Coach

Coach Foy Hammons said Tuesday that much time would be devoted this week to timing, blocking and the correct execution of spinner and trick plays as the team prepared for the Smackover High School grid game at Hope Friday night.

Hammons said he was satisfied with the team's defensive showing against Haynesville, but declared the offense looked "ragged" at times because of poor blocking and incorrect timing of plays.

He attributed this partly because of the absence of Jimmy Daniels, regular quarterback, who was out of the game with injuries. Hammons said he hoped the squad would show improvement in forward passing.

Hammons said a wide-open fight was developing for a guard position between May, Breeding, Keith, Lile Jones and Stuntz. He said all five will probably be given a chance against Smackover.

Hammons also indicated that Loy Ward and J. D. Jones would be given chances to play at end position.

Communications from Smackover said Tuesday that the 55-piece Buckaroo band and approximately 500 fans would ride a special train to Hope for the game. Hammons urged Hope supporters to meet the train and provide transportation to the football field.

The time for arrival of the train will be announced as quickly as the train schedule is completed.

1940 Dodge Luxury Liner Proves Style Creation With a New Ride

Novel Performance Element, Called "Full-Floating Ride, Feature of Newest Models

While the announcement of the 1940 Dodge passenger car models features a multitude of style, comfort and operating innovations, the most outstanding achievement in the new series of Dodge Luxury Liners is described as a new and revolutionary performance element called "full-floating ride."

The basic principle underlying the "full-floating ride" of the 1940 Dodge is said to consist in a newly perfected, by which the company's engineers have created a scientifically suspended "zone of comfort" the practical advantages which are further realized through an unusual body layout.

New, Different, Attractive
An outworn examination of the 1940 Dodge shows the car as a fresh, original style creation of a newness so thorough that not a single 1939 body die is said to have been retained for 1940 production. Every line of the new car—from the air-elevating V-slant radiator grille, past the streamlined hood, the reclined windshield, arched roof, ingeniously modified fender contours on to the two broken roundness of rear quarters and back—spells newness, difference and attraction.

In Bitter Quarrel
As the Polish president, Ignace Moscicki, Foreign Minister Jozef Beck and Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Polish army commander, crossed the border, the Cernauti chief of police estimated that at least 100,000 refugees had fled Poland for safety in Roumania.

Moscicki and Beck were given permission to reside at Craiova, and superior officers of the General Staff will live near Bucharest.

Moscicki entrained for Craiova, near the Bulgarian frontier, while Beck continued to the Sushkul-Moldavia district and Marshal Smigly-Rydz to Bikaz in the Carpathian mountains.

There was a bitter argument between Beck and Smigly-Rydz at the station during the farewell to Moscicki. The army chief stalked off to an automobile, ignoring Beck's and Smigly-Rydz's "good-byes" were now separated.

Division If Poland
BERLIN.—(AP)—German and Russian army officers were drawing up an occupation line for their united Poland Monday as it was reported the Nazis were resuming their battle to force the surrender of Warsaw. Detachments of the two armies of occupation met at Brest-Litovsk, Polish city where Russian revolutionists and Germans signed their separate peace in the World War.

The two commands were concerned with fixing a line in Poland beyond which the German and Russian armies would not go. Reports were heard here that the best of Poles could be sent to Bohemia and Moravia, what was Czechoslovakia, with Warsaw as the capital.

Poultry Meeting Wednesday Night

Experts to Discuss New Program for Southwest Arkansas

Hempstead county poultry raisers and all persons interested in poultry are invited to a public meeting to be held Wednesday night, at Hope city hall to hear a discussion of poultry raising by R. M. (Bob) Calbert, manager of Edwards Hatchery, and J. H. McAdams, poultry expert of St. Louis. The principal speaker will be Mr. McAdams who will give details on hatching, feeding, marketing of poultry. A survey has been made of this section of the state and both speakers feel confident that this area could be developed into a great poultry producing section.

The public is invited to hear these two men discuss possibilities of such a program for southwest Arkansas. The meeting begins at 7:45.

Lemons may be sour, but they turn very sweet when invited into a pie crust. Fresh limes behave the same way. Maybe it's just the nature's way. Let's see about it.

Lime Chiffon Pie
(9-inch pie)
One pie shell, 1 tablespoon of granulated gelatin, 1-2 cup of cold water, 3 egg yolks, 3-1/2 ounces of granulated sugar, 1-2 cup of lime juice, 2 egg whites, 3-1/2 ounces of granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 1/2 cup of grated lime rind dash of green coloring, 1-4 pint of whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Place egg yolks in double boiler with sugar and lime juice; mix thoroughly until thick and creamy stirring constantly.

Remove from fire and stir in soaked gelatin. Beat egg whites until stiff and gradually add sugar, vanilla, grated lime rind and coloring, and beat until smooth. Pour the cooked mixture into the stiffly beaten whites. Mix well and pour into baked pie shell. Place in refrigerator until firm, and garnish with whipped cream. The lime filling should be a delicate, light green.

Sour Milk Lemon Pie
(9-inch pie)
One cup sour milk, 2 1-4 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2-3 cups sugar, 2 eggs.

Blend flour, one cup sugar, salt and lightly beaten egg yolks. Add sour milk, lemon juice and butter. Cook in the top of a double boiler until thick. Pour in a baked pastry shell. Beat egg whites until they stand in a peak, add remaining half cup sugar and beat until glossy. Spread on top filling and brown lightly in a hot oven, 350 to 400 degrees F.

Berry Gloomy Over Prospects of Defeating Haynesville and Hope

Assistant Coach Hays, Who Scouted Game In Hope, Takes Back to El Dorado Story of Two Powerful Football Machines

EL DORADO -- Not at all jubilant over prospects of his Wildcats whipping Haynesville's Golden Tornado at Haynesville Friday night, Coach Allen Berry will put his Wildcat grid machine through a hard week of practice at Rowland Field.

All the joy that Coach Berry may have derived from the 26 to 6 victory over Crossett here Friday night was turned to gloom upon the return here of Assistant Coach Guy B. Hays, who scouted the Hope-Haynesville scrap on the same night. After hearing his scout's report on the Haynesville and Hope teams, Coach Berry rapidly concluded that "our chances are very slim."

Rated the second strongest team in the state Coach Foy Hammon's Hope Bobcats defeated Haynesville to the tune of 13 to 6, but the score doesn't tell all the story, according to Assistant Coach Hays. In the opinion of the local scout, there is "not one point difference between the two teams."

Skipper Hays explained that Haynesville "donated" one touchdown to the Bobcats by allowing a flat pass to be intercepted. The Golden Tornado machine, coached by Gaynell Tinsley, All-American from L. S. U. has a line that is going to deal the Berry Bombers misery galore.

The right side of the Tinsley forward wall is virtually impregnable. Scout Hays reported. The right side boasts two chaps to whom weigh 185 pounds and a third gent, Heard, who tips the scales at 265. The other side of the wall isn't composed of weaklings according to Hays. Mainstay on the left wall is Captain Rigdon, a crackerjack guard who packs 138 pounds of brawn.

Observer Hays didn't find much to console him about the Haynesville backfield. The Golden Tornado has a pair of good hard running backs in Pence and Crump. Pence grabbed a kickoff and galloped 85 yards for a touchdown at Hope Friday night. The two have an able assistant in Tinsley, cousin of the Haynesville coach. The latter is a fast ball carrier and an efficient passer, Hays says.

Facing such a potent combination, Coach Berry is openly worried. His worries don't end, however, with the game at Haynesville Friday night, for one week later the Hamons, Bobcats invade Rowland field for a scrap with the Wildcats. "Hope's got the biggest line in the state," Scout Hays carefully informed Mentor Berry. One tackle, Simpson, weighs 255, while the other, Calhoun, is a mere 205 pounds. Hope has a couple of hard charging 170 pound guards, two 200 pound ends and a 180 pounder at center.

In the backfield, Foy Hammons, has Ellen, speedster who is apt turn his heels to Wildcat tacklers. Hope has another star back, Daniels, who was out of service but who is scheduled to play against the Wildcats here.

first string will be good; reserves are not what they could be.

SMU Dark Horse

Rated with TCU as Southern Methodist, Arkansas and Texas A. and M. Not since the 1935 Rose Bowl days has Southern Methodist had a top-notch, but Coach Matty Bell believes this is the year.

Sophomore Presto Johnson, a huge triple-threat who can punt 'em out of sight, is the big hope, along with a batch of veteran lettermen, back from a fairly successful season in '38. SMU is the "dark horse."

The Texas Aggies, with power to spare, will try more of the old bruising game in a pass-diffy league. Bury running backs will feature its play.

with a good dose of passing thrown in. The Aggies have reserves aplenty a factor that makes them dangerous.

Twenty-six sophomores adorned the roster of Arkansas University last fall. They're all back and Coach Fred Thompson, who laid claim to the nation's hard luck title last season by losing several games in the last minute of play, will have a serious threat. Veterans will crowd around triple-threaters Kay Eakin, a fancy pass pitcher and kicker.

Baylor, always dangerous, finished the season in '38 with seven victories, two defeats, and one tie. Only a few of the key men are gone and its freshmen team last season wallowed everything else in the Conference first year ranks. Here is a possibility--always well coached and free wheeling because they are usually counted out before they start.

Coach D. X. Bible at Texas, busy rebuilding after two seasons in the basement, will be starting with sophomores. They could come through. Just in case--don't forget Jack Crain and R. B. Patrick--two soph backs who tore all over the premises in freshmen games. Bible won only one of nine games last year, but Bible teams just don't do that two years in a row.

Mysterious Inscriptions On Tree Tells Ordeal

VICTORIT, B. C.--(AP)--After several years' study by experts, the mystery of inscriptions found on a blazed tree near Moccitown has been unraveled. J. B. Munro, a provincial official, obtained a translation from Indians, as follows.

"Here very long way we have traveled. Very bad storm. Chn. Mischel. This is my word."

Following the trail further Munro found an elderly Indian named Mischel in the vicinity and the latter told him he and a companion left the message when apparently doomed to death in a blizzard.

After much hardship, he continued, they came out alive.

Has Razzle Dazzle --But No Dazzlers

Ohio State, Coached By Francis Schmidt, Has "No Stars"

By J. H. COLBURN
AP Feature Service
COLUMBUS, O. -- A team without a "glamour boy."

That's what they're saying at Ohio State University about those razzle dazzle Bucks of Coach Francis A. Schmidt.

"There are no stars; no triple threat men. Not even the lettermen are sure of a starting assignment." That's the locker room talk as the one-time vaunted "Scarlet Scourge" prepares for perhaps its toughest season in years.

Sixty-two players, largest squad since Schmidt came to Ohio State five years ago, came forth to be developed into a combination good enough to better last year's record of four wins, three losses, and one tie. State finished sixth in the Big Ten.

Twenty-eight of the players are sophomores, indicative of the sweeping hunt for new material.

The squad as a whole, though, Schmidt believes, will produce a more mobile unit to execute his intricate ball-handling plays.

Give up razzle dazzle? Not Schmidt. Buck players have been "hoing" over 20 plays, most of them of the trick variety, and some of which Schmidt picked up watching basketball games last winter.

The appearance of Johnny Rabb, the team's biggest ground-gainer two years ago, in good playing condition, shed a bright ray on the outlook. The slippery running Barberton, O., youth was out of action last year because of a knee injury.

Rabb'll get plenty of competition at his old fullback post, though, from plunging James Langhurst of Wilberd O., who grabbed the ground gaining laurels last season. Schmidt thinks possibly he can work them both into his backfield, with Johnny at a half-back spot.

Typical of the coaching staff's attitude was Line Coach Ernie Gorfrey's reply to which would be the toughest team to beat.

"Missouri," he said, "and all after that."

Chi opens with Missouri Oct. 7, then heads the following: Northwestern Oct. 14, Minnesota Oct. 21, Cornell Oct. 14, Indiana Nov. 4, Chicago Nov. 11, Illinois Nov. 18 and Michigan Nov. 25.

Rice Hopes to Win Conference Title

Prospects of Southwest Conference Teams Is Given

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
AP Feature Service
DALLAS, Texas--The nation's football critics, a gullible lot, thoughtfully wrapped up the Southwest Conference title, a Rose Bowl link and a couple of All-American positions and handed them to Rice Institute last season--on Sept. 1.

Nothing could happen. It was all set. Rice merely had to make an appearance every Saturday afternoon to carry out the deal.

Death, ill fortune and an incredibly large amount of injuries slipped into the picture. Mighty Rice stumbled through a season in which it won only four games, lost six. Fullback Jack Vestal died in mid-season.

But potentialities remained in the shambles of a ruinous season--so Rice Institute still looms as a Southwest power and coaches over the seven club conference again point to them as the favorite.

Back for their final year are two of the Southwest's greatest players--Ernie Lain and Olie Cordill, a pair of breath-taking backs.

Loaded with material and out-standing men of experience at each position Rice, with its combination of Lain's passing and plunging and Cordill's unmatched kicking and broken fielding, certainly looks dangerous. The need of better quarterbacking may arise, however, and veteran ends were graduated.

Tough Schedule
Too, the schedule is tough. Other than the usual rugged Southwest Conference competition, the Owls meet Fordham, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State.

Dope usually lasts until the kickoff in the Southwest Conference but the signs point to four teams--Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, Arkansas and Texas A. and M.--kicking up the most dust around Rice's wobbly first ranking.

What of Texas Christian, the undefeated winners of last fall and conquerors of Carnegie Tech in the Sugar Bowl?

Stripped of Quarterback Davey O'Brien and Center Ki Aldrich, two All-Americans, and Tackle I. B. Hale, the Christians couldn't be as rowdy as they were last year, in the opinion of Coach Leo Meyer, but "we'll be up there scrapping around in the first division."

Successor to O'Brien will be Jack Odle, a 187-pound boy who can throw lots of football and kick more. The fight in Philadelphia, is a good enough referee to be dragged across the continent, but he is perhaps best remembered for his famous crack after he halted the Max Schmeling-Young Strubling bout in Cleveland in 1931.

"Why did you stop it?" asked boxing writers. "Only a few seconds were left."

"Gentlemen," replied the veteran official, "I'm a referee, not a time-keeper."

NEW YORK--Mrs. John McGraw, wife of the late manager of the New York Giants, has the signature of George V on a baseball, and through the aid of Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, hopes to have George VI's signature added to the cover.

Hornby May Coach
PHILADELPHIA--Earl Mack would like to get some established hitter like Rogers Hornby to take along on the 1940 spring training trip which will carry the Athletics through the Panama Canal to Anaheim, Calif. Mack wants such a batter to teach Philadelphia to slug. Hornby, famous as a second baseman and manager, right now is out of a job, so probably would be happy to accompany the Mackmen. Mack already has signed Chief Bender, famous old Athletic immortal, to teach embryo fingers. Connie Mack really intends to rebuild. With night baseball swelling attendance, it is said that he offered $100,000 for Gerald Priddy, Yankee-owned second baseman of Kansas City.

Sports of All Sorts

Mississippi Gridders
UNIVERSITY, Miss. -- There's all kinds of tradition behind the Mississippi football team this year.

Bill and Homer Hazel, Jr., are sons of the former Hutgers' All-American, who was the only man ever to make the honor team at two positions in two different years--end and fullback, in 1923-24. Hazel senior later coached at Mississippi. Both sons are outstanding guard candidates.

Henry and George Kinard, brothers of Frank 'Bruiser' Kinard, All-American tackle of two seasons ago, also are guard prospects, with George especially outstanding.

Merle Hapes, 185-pound triple-threat sophomore fullback is the third of three great backfielders from California who have played for Ole Miss. They acquired fame as a broken field punter; Clarence also was a triple-threat fullback.

England Still Is "Courting" Italy

Allied Diplomats May Be Considering Buying Mussolini Off

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON—England and France may not appear so busy fighting, but they are working hard in the diplomatic corridors.

Just now that is of especial interest both to diplomats, who like to win contests that way, and to military men, who are in doubt how England and France can win any other way.

Wedged in among reports of skirmishes on the western front and German advances in the east, are brief items telling how England and France are using all their old persuaders on Italy, Spain and Japan, to turn them against their one-time ally of the anti-comintern.

Wars are sometimes won by an adept purchase of an ally just as they are won by an adept purchase of munitions. England no doubt would offer Italy an extensive piece of African acreage in return for fighting Germany or even for an assured friendly neutrality. With Italy on the fence as she is, England would not feel safe in sending any sizeable expedition through the Mediterranean into the Black sea to help Poland through the "back door."

The Time Has Come
Military experts suggest that the time has come for diplomacy to work relief. Search as we will, we cannot find a solitary soldier who can tell how France or England can break into Germany. An attack on the sea coast would be extremely hazardous and might cost Britain half her navy and still fail.

The skirmishing along the western front so far means little.

The nearer the collapse of Poland the more desperate the plight of France and England to show that they have the winning hand. With Italy on their side they could have an opening into

STORIES IN STAMPS

Ancient Hebrews Used Hitler's Swastika

WHEN Adolf Hitler adopted the swastika as the insignia of the Nazi party and later incorporated into the flag of Germany, it is hardly possible that he realized he was copying an old Jewish symbol. His campaign for "pure Aryanism," which has developed into persecution, would have prohibited the use of the swastika.

But the Hebrews did not originate the symbol. Its earliest appearance, so far discovered, is upon a painted cup from Mesopotamia, made in about 3000 B. C. Metal workers of Asiatic Turkey used the same design as early as 2000 B. C., and the ruins of a Greek villa, destroyed in 348 B. C., has a swastika inscribed on the floor.

The Buddhists of India incorporated this cross with hooked arms into their art and the Chinese used it as a sun symbol as early as the second century.

Among the American Indians, the swastika has long been a favorite. Navajo silversmiths use it extensively in their jewelry and it is found frequently in rug designs.

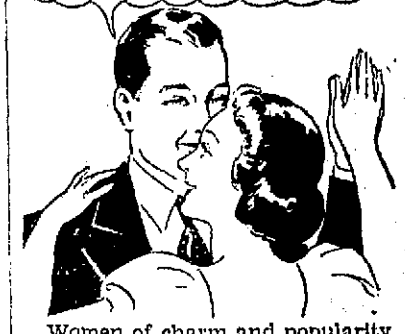

Many of the "luck" pieces carried by American boys also bear the swastika.

President O. K.'s "Heavenly" Mansion

Saying he planned to buy this former Frederick Vanderbilt mansion close to President Roosevelt's Hyde Park, N. Y., home, negro cult leader Father Divine asked the President if he would object to him and his followers as neighbors. He was told he had any citizen's right to buy property anywhere. But Mrs. Margaret Van Allen, of Newport, R. I., who owns the $500,000 house, declared the property is not for sale.

International Law Is at Lowest Ebb

Hugo Grotius of Switzerland, Father of International Law

WASHINGTON—What does the President mean when he suggests that the U. S. "fall back" on international law in preference to the "neutrality act" designed for this country alone? The answer would vary, depending upon where you went to get it. Nevertheless, there is a body of international law. Much of it has been accepted for centuries. Much of it is in serious dispute. Just now it is suffering an all-time low mark of honest observance.

Edwin M. Borchard of Columbia university, a foremost authority, insists, however, that even now international law is a binding set of rules applied by an due states in their international intercourse. International law is a lawless code in any respect. It is built up exclusively in peace, only to be shattered and disregarded in considerable part in war. Even in war, though there is strict adherence to an extensive portion of it. For example, prisoners are not slaughtered now, as they once were.

Yet a long-accepted rule against making war on defenseless citizens went overboard in the World war, and was not respected by the Italians in Ethiopia, the Japanese in China, and perhaps by the Germans in Poland.

Developments of air warfare was blamed. Rules respecting this zone of battle are so new that they do not carry three force of long custom and use that has established much international law.

Egypt Had Treaties
Those who read through the President's proclamation of neutrality, the one he called the "regular proclamation" to distinguish it from one under the neutrality act, noted that it was based entirely on widely-accepted international law.

Among other things it prohibits belligerent warships using our ports for bases of operation. It orders our citizens to take no part in the combat.

International law, like the common law, sort of "grewed up" with the times. Ancient Egypt had treaties with certain of her sister states in which all agreed to respect and protect one another's embassies. Their international laws sounded like their own domestic laws. They were called

"Natural" Laws or "Laws of All Mankind"

Rome enforced a code largely of its own making, but Rome recognized the older principles. International law became really important when Europe began segregating itself into independent states. It had a haphazard growth through the middle centuries until a scholarly Swiss, Hugo Grotius, wrote a treatise in the sixteenth century that was so sound and so widely accepted, that he has been known ever since as the father of international law.

Like the ancients, he sought to base international law on "natural justice." It was the condition of prisoners and wounded, to avoid imposing war upon defenseless populations, to respect the sanctity of embassies, truces and treaties. Neutral commerce had certain rights.

Big Nations Write It
International law respecting rights of colonization and sea trade had a tremendous growth after the discovery of America. The various treaties that settled Europe's wars always contributed some new law.

It has always been a habit, and still is, for big nations to write much of their own international law and let smaller nations do the best they can. During the World war England imposed a type of blockade that was strictly illegal—until then, Germany practiced a type of sea warfare illegal—until then. Both now are resuming the same practices.

Unfortunately, most international law has to do with conduct of nations during war. Societies and nations have sought to broaden the law so that matters relating to tariffs, immigration, trade preferences, struggles for markets and raw materials, size of armies or navies, and control of backward territories could be adjusted without war. Success has limited.

It is still legal to seize land and people by conquest. We tried to make it internationally illegal in China in 1931 but England backed out on us, much to her present discomfort.

Hillman Saves Bankrupt Firm

There is inspiration for every American, new or old, in "Sidney Hillman," by George Soule (Macmillan; $2.50). It is the Alger story up-to-date, of the rise of a Russian immigrant boy to the deserved designation as "labor statesman" and pioneer in modern Americanism. A hint as to how Hillman gained the title is given in this incident on how a business on the verge of bankruptcy was saved: Hillman at once grasped the fact that the business was essentially sound. He thought of the jobs of his several hundred workers who would be turned out into the street if the establishment closed down. He also thought of the probability that after those workers had suffered months of unemployment, non-unionized manufacturers were likely to move in and exploit them at low wages.

He suddenly said to the employer: "I have no authority for this from my board, but subject to their approval, do you think it would lend you over if the union should lend you $100,000 on the condition that the banks will extend their loans? The manufacturer was taken completely by surprise and protested that his purpose in breaking the news to Hillman was not to ask for help. He finally consented, however, to go back and discuss the matter with the banks again on the basis of the offer.

The bankers were dumbfounded when they heard the news. "You have lost your reason," they said in effect to their client. "Your troubles have gone to your head. Unions exist to hamper business, not to help it. These red revolutionaries would not try to save you."

Finally they became convinced that his union meant what it said and could back up its promise with hard cash. They also saw the force of Hillman's reasoning, and agreed to co-operate. The Amalgamated in the end had to put up only $30,000, not a cent of which it ultimately lost. The concern in question was saved and is doing a large business today.

Bruce Catton Says:

Sumner Welles, U. S. Delegation to Panama Peace Conference, Is Personality Puzzle

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Sumner Welles, the tall and dignified under-secretary of state who is going to represent the United States at the peace-and-neutrality conference in Panama, is one of the leading enigmas of official Washington.

Perhaps one reason is the fact that he looks and acts more like a big league diplomat than any ordinary human would think possible. He is imposing to look at; handsome, well set-up physically, impeccably dressed, always studiously correct in his manner, with an iron grip on his emotions. He is the foreign office personified.

More important, is the fact that he is not a static person. He acquires new ideas with experience, and as he acquires them he drops old ones. This, plus glacial reserve, may account for the fact that diametrically opposite ideas about him are widespread.

On one hand, it is asserted that he is an anglophile who lent strong moral support to the late lamented appeasement policy of Chamberlain; on the other, it is stated that he is a staunch anti-Fascist, a man who has consistently opposed the pro-British wing of the State Department.

Again, he is blamed by some for retaining a strong sense of the old-time "dollar diplomat" attitude toward Latin-American nations; by others, he is praised for whole-souled devotion to the New Deal's good neighbor policy.

He started out as a career man in the department. Born to money and social position, he went through Groton and Harvard, entering the department in 1915 about a year after getting his university diploma. He served in Tokyo and Buenos Aires, came back to Washington, and wound up in the early twenties as chief of the division of Latin-American affairs.

He quit that job in 1922 to handle a variety of special assignments in Central America and the Caribbean, spending about three years as special envoy to the Dominican Republic.

In 1925 he left the service. A personal friend of Franklin Roosevelt, he offered him his aid in the 1932 campaign and after Roosevelt's inauguration returned to Washington as assistant secretary of state.

His first big job under Roosevelt was a hot potato—he was made ambassador to Cuba just when the Machado regime was tottering to its fall. Welles went to Cuba with the idea that he could bring together representatives of opposing factions and obtain agreement on some compromise candidate; open revolt against Machado developed, however, and the Grau San Martin regime was set up.

Attacker Baffled by Fortified Line

British, French May Lose Million Men Storming 12 Siegfried Line

By MORGAN BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Anybody who has seen a working model of the fortifications on the western front in Europe can understand why the generals on both sides—and the soldiers in the line as well—aren't any too anxious to get down to blood and thunder.

Any man worth his military salt tells you that he attacks on either side is going to lose at least four men to the defender's one. More likely, if the attempt is extremely determined, the losses will be ten to one.

The Germans are supposed to have lost 500,000 men trying to take Verdun in the World War. Consider the shock of anguish at home when the dead and wounded started pouring back. Some military psychologists have even surmised that those losses primarily broke the back of German resistance.

Now come authoritative estimates that an attacking force on the new western front might have to count on losing 500,000 men to achieve a breakthrough.

Psychological
If the attacking force should be the French army aided by the British, the victors could still find themselves on the west bank of the Rhine, barred from the heart of Germany by the secondary defenses behind the Rhine between Mannheim and Eissen, and probably too exhausted to exploit their initial victory.

As a matter of fact, military men who have seen one side or the other of the western front recently, speculate that the primary value of breaking through the wall on either side would be more psychological than real.

It would prove to the victorious army and the people back home—and to the vanquished too—that a Maginot or a Siegfried line is not impregnable. That should instill greater will to win.

But consider the assault that failed military men can conceive of no more tragic figure than the general who had lost 500,000 men—and failed to win his battle. The effect on the morale of the people on the home front would be almost disastrous.

These are the reasons why you hear so much speculation that the Franco-British alliance may seek another way around before they really get going. That's why military men are wondering about little Belgium and the Netherlands again, and Switzerland. Outflanking the enemy is an old regime—a policy for which he has been severely criticized—and was generally credited with having brought Col. Fulgencio Batista to power.

Welles Escapes Latin Resentment

Yet if his course in Cuba might have been expected to arouse resentment against him among Latin-American statesmen, his subsequent career has gone just the other way.

He has had a leading part in the campaign to restore Latin-American confidence in the United States.

As delegate to the Buenos Aires conference of 1936, and since then as under-secretary of state, he has been a foremost exponent of the good neighbor policy.

It probably is no exaggeration to say that he has the full confidence of the Latin diplomats he will be meeting in the Panama conference.

For all his appearance of austere aloofness, Welles is a prodigious worker. Before the European war began his normal day at the State Department ran from about 9:15 in the morning to 6:30 at night. Since the war began, quitting time has been pushed back by an hour or more.

Welles' country home in Maryland is something of a show-place. He mingles in capital-S Society here only to the extent required by his position. Off duty, his favorite diversions are horseback riding and caring for his flowers.

Nurse Held in Sister's "Mercy" Death

Quoted as saying "I feel happier now than I have all my life," Margaret Cowan, 77-year-old retired nurse, is pictured after her arrest in Allentown, Pa. Police say she admitted killing her sister, Mrs. Louella Saeger, to "put her out of her misery." The slain woman was a patient in the Allentown State Hospital, where the shooting occurred.

HARRISON IN HOLLYWOOD

Producers Blue-Pencil Film Budgets as War Cuts Off Large Movie Market

HOLLYWOOD—The first bomb your writers to get those radios out of their offices and to start writing. Or the movie producer's feet from his desk. "Take a memo to my Brother Mac and Cousin Joe; 'Dear Fellows: On account of the big war in Europe, Epic Pictures will have to cut expenses to the bone. So you had better take a vacation from whatever you are supposed to be doing and look around quick for some other business to get into.'"

"George," snapped the producer, "I got a big war on my hands."

"Get me the sheets on the production budget for this season, and a blue pencil. Make it two blue pencils."

"Get New York on the phone. We gotta stop 'em from borrowing that million bucks to make 'Bustle Along.' Tell Horowitz to figure on leaving out all the big dance numbers because 'Bustle Along' will be an intimate musical and musn't cost a dime over three hundred grand."

"Call casting and tell Bloomie we won't be needing Helga Haasman for 'Pomp and Ceremony' on account of we won't be making 'Pomp and Ceremony.' Say that if Helga hollers about having a contract to show her Clause 18, which is about acts of God and Hitler."

"Take a memo to Henry in the story department: 'Dear Henry: Tell all military custom, as old as war itself. To assume that the Franco-British diplomatic and military commands are not also trying to figure a way to outflank the German West Wall, is to assume they are not attending to their business."

Tough? Look
Why are these lines on the Franco-German frontier so formidable? Here are five good military reasons.

1. Both the Siegfried and Maginot lines vary in depth from five to 40 miles, depending on the type of terrain they are defending. In the mountains of the Black Forest and the Vosges range on either side of the Rhine they are minimum in depth, for attacking forces must not only fight but also climb.

2. The fronts of the opposing lines are composed of pillboxes, barbed wire, and protruding tank traps. The pillboxes are about four to six feet square—or round—accommodating two to four men armed with machine guns and automatic rifles. They open enfilade fire on the enemy, which means a criss-cross of bullets, each pillbox protecting its neighbor against assault, and shooting straight ahead as well. A half dozen lines of pillboxes each line a mile apart, and all connected by trenches and telephone, makes a withering pattern of fire six miles deep.

3. Back of the pillboxes are the so-called Block-forts, some 10 to 12 feet square—or round, or oblong—four to six to the mile, and camouflaged as villas and farm houses. Like the pillboxes, they are made of concrete and steel, and connected by tunnels or trenches thick with machine guns. Prepared to meet the enemy with enfilade fire, the block-forts also contain a one-pounder, the gun capable of stopping tanks, and can or cannot throw three-inch, rapid-fire guns, with a range of five miles or more. Often there are 10 miles of block-forts.

A Little Way Back
4. Still further back, and carefully screened on convenient hillsides are the secondary heavy defenses spaced well apart, less than one to every 20 miles or more, containing veritable arsenals and complete electric power plants. They are linked by tunnels and protected by anti-aircraft guns, anti-gas apparatus, and are three to a dozen batteries, of range of 10, 12, or 16-inch cannon. These modern-day guns have a range of 20 to 25 miles, and their accuracy up to 15 miles is unequalled.

5. Still further back are the major heavy fortifications, such as Verdun, Metz and Belvoir, on the French side, and Ansbach, Hunsrück, and Koblenz on the German side. Around them, interspersed all along the line at the rear are anti-aircraft batteries and underground aviation fields.

That's the stuff the western front is made of—and it's tough. Most experts agree that the French Maginot line is far better than the German Siegfried line, but they don't like the looks of either for attacking purposes.

What Is a Lobster? Here Are Two Answers

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—The question: "What is a lobster?" has caused a furore in the Florida fish shipping industry.

The federal trade commission has ruled the term "lobster" may be used only in connection with the genus Homarus, found along the Atlantic coast north of North Carolina.

A Miami fish shipper, M. Swartz, was ordered to cease distributing "sea crayfish" in interstate commerce as "real lobster meat" of the genus Homarus, when such is not the fact.

Swartz said enforcement of the commission's order would inflict irreparable damage on the Florida industry, which, he estimated, employs 1,000 persons and does a $750,000 business annually.

In answer to the commission's warning, Swartz's company said: "We do not and cannot concede that the American people merely associate lobster with that found along the North American coast, but in truth and fact a large number of American people also associate the word 'lobster' with the product found in Southern Waters."

markets began to close down anyway. Hitlerland and Italy ousted American films and most other countries imposed new quota restrictions on Hollywood. Even more frightening was a further slump in box office receipts in this country.

Bewildered executives began to talk about closing down studios. For a few weeks almost no new top-budget pictures were started. But suddenly, American patrons began raising Cain about having to sit through two class B pictures on one program. Such protests proved that the fans still were interested, so producers regained some of their confidence and went to work again.

War May Prompt Better Movies
Now that war really has come, the entertainment situation for this continent may actually improve—at least, after a period of readjustment. I've been listening to the predictions of a prominent director, who for obvious reasons doesn't want to be identified.

He believes the overhauling which economic necessity will dictate for Hollywood will result in movies of far better quality from every critical standpoint. Only thing is, they won't be quite so large and lavish.

There'll be less competition in extravagance," he said. "None of the brass hats will be able to brag that this or that scene or set is the biggest and most expensive ever filmed. They'll learn, we hope, that good stories and good acting can be very acceptable substitutes for mere size."

and a jamming together of star names. The salaries of stars—and I mean the vivid, doll-like cuties and pretty boys—will go down with a bang.

"More and more directors will be given producer authority—a combination that already is proving to be the only sensible way. And from all the high places there will be an exodus of highly-paid nit-wits and do-nothings who have been parasites on this industry all during its prosperity. Pensioned relatives will be weeded out quietly. Producers and directors with poor records will follow. A lot of high-salaried writers—whose names are supposed to mean something, but who can't write for the screen—will find themselves having to earn a living from now on."

"So in the long run, this war may be a good thing for Hollywood. Pictures must be cheaper, but most of us believe they'll be better."
